

While glossary entries are simply printed in the text, an acronym is firstly fully printed with the short version in parentheses, later only in the short version.